

Stop Blending In, Start Standing Out Highlights

fwa.org/spotlight/stop-blending-in-start-standing-out-highlights/

Drive Your Career with Your Authentic Brilliance & Distinctive Uniqueness

On September 24th, the Emerging Leaders committee hosted its highly anticipated workshop, “Stop Blending In, Start Standing Out...Drive Your Career with Your Authentic Brilliance & Distinctive Uniqueness”, the first of its fall events this year.

With 30 members in attendance, highly acclaimed transformational leadership coach Regina Huber offered tips on career growth through showing one’s authentic brilliance and distinctive uniqueness.

The workshop was highly interactive, allowing for Regina as well as the participants to offer personalized and constructive feedback to each other. During the first half of the workshop, Regina spoke about the power of each person’s “differentness” and shared some practical methods to identify one’s “unique assets.”

During the second half of the workshop, the participants brainstormed ways to leverage these assets in the workplace, even before being promoted into a leadership position; some of the key takeaways included being visible within the organization, showing up powerfully at networking events and sharing your story to inspire others. Overall, the workshop was incredibly productive and well-executed, and we hope many of those in attendance were inspired to embrace their distinctive uniqueness and put it to work in their careers!

Special thank you to Regina Huber and Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation SMBC for hosting a successful event.